Claim Rejections – 35 U.S.C. 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because it fails to disclose the readable medium "being executable in a computer".

Claim Rejections – 35 U.S.C. 102

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 11, 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Peterson et al. (6,594,682) cited in IDS.

Peterson discloses a client-side system for building an index (See Col. 14, lines 35-39) comprising pipelining global analysis (See Col. 2, lines 47-67), receiving inputs from a global view (See Col. 4, line 58 to Col. 5, line 22).

Allowable subject matter

Claims 3-10, 13-20, 23-30 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Brandli et al. (5,701,469) discloses a method and system for generating accurate search results using a content-index.
